public and private, were very numerous.

At this season a heavy business is done in perfemeries, Cologne, Florida and other scented waters being spirted around with perfect reckloseness. Everybody is armed with a small vial of tinfoil, much resembling the tubes in which an artist purchases his paints. These are filled with such waters. A small opening at the top ejects, in answer to a little pressure, a fine stream, which is aimed at the passers by, usually of the opposite sex. As the weeks of carnival wear on these sprinkling machines gradually increase in size and power until the fourth day fore the close, when large gutta percha bottles, each holding about a pint, and having an ivory nozzle of pro-portionate size, are most in vogue. Every conceivable contrivance is resorted to for ducking everybody, and this ducking is a truly democratic affair. All are on a level here, except those at the upper story windows and on the housetops, from which heights every passer by is doused. Pails and tubs are brought into requisition to keep up the supply. Immense waterproof paper bags, strongly made, holding about two quarts each, are filled as required. are filled as required, and so thrown as to burst on the head, against the back or at the feet of and drenching completely the unfortunate.

The meat is blown out of egg shells, the shells dlied with water, the ends closed up with tallow, and these are thrown by thousands everywhere, by every-body, and at everybody. Bruised limbs, bloody noses and black eyes are given and taken as good jokes and matters of course. Men go along the streets having boys or servants following with boxes of these watered eggs, re marked by the firing of guns for the purpose by the Few people in the world have more strial young ladies than are found on the banks of Ruo de la Plata, their ingures, dress, gait, bair and being their strong points. Their eyes are usually cribed as "stunning," and it must be confessed they is much of the electric fir. But to see them spurkle dazzle with their greatest brilliancy you must see a in carnival time.

some Spanish countries, especially the Island of a, this season is embraced by both men and women less innocent purposes. Where rivals meet, who are but of each other, aqua fortis, aqua regia, green and vitriols, sulphuric acid, &c., are sometimes subtled for these innocent perfumed waters, and prirted a the face of the rival to destroy beauty. Someworthers are hired to do this devilled work, so as to be the face of the rival to destroy beauty. Someworthers are hired to do this devilled work, so as to be all both motive and actor; and where a man or and is so spirted upon a score or more times within the remarks of the country for.

In the heart of the city is a fine plaza, where a band, little inferior to Dodworth's, discourses sweet music every evening when the weather will permit. This plaza is as brillantly lighted as a drawing room, and here you may see in the evening, from nine to eleven o'clock, the beauty, grace and elogance of the city. Alltitle distance from this, as we go out the principal thorough-fare through the old gates (all now left of the walls once limiting and defending the town), we find ourselves in the midst of a large market, well supplied with beef, equal to Fritton Market's best, at five cents a pound; mution, not surpassed by the English Southdown, at three cents; with eggs, poultry and game in abundance at proportionate roles. Fruit, mank melons and water melons, not ast all equal in quality, nor appruse high in variety eur own, are novertheless abundant, and to be had at moderate prices, though not corresponding to those of mests and poultry. The soil, crimate and everything in nature lavors the cultivation of the vine here, and this would seem to promise to be one of the greatess wine countries in the western world. A wine resembling the sin ordinate of the province of Champages, in Franco, is masufactured in the interior, and brought bindreds of miles on mules, to be soid at twently cents per bottle here.

The dry weather and the clouds of dust swept over the plans by the pamperos have injured maternally the crop this year. One is raised in quantities sufficient for home consumption, but has not yet been cultivated to any great extent. It is, nevertheless, moderate in price.

Time was, not long since, when large quantities of flour were imported from the Custed State. Now the market is entirely to none, unless it by our own Geneesee, Brandywine Bills, and other extra and lancy brands.

What is remarked of the market of this great extent of the outry scape in the province of the outry, having a population of at least 200,000.

It is a great pity that nectities of these clies has a good harbor. At Busines of th

Over the plains be shown as I rounded the head of the cove, I saw an anciosure porhage of thirty acres, in which were brond, dee, black looking roofs, covering a large area, in the same of which shoot a tail brick channey, from which welled the foul, black smoke of the bone kills.

by a fence about nine feet high, very strongly built. From its gate on the ide next me two great fences opened into the plain like the very jaws of death, as they are, the distance between them constantly widening as the distance from the pen increased. Opposite this gate is another, which opens into a lane or passage about one hundred feet long and fifteen feet wide at the head and eight feet at the foot. Into this the cattle are driven in tots of fifty, more or less, at once. At the farther end of this is the slanghter house, a building several hundred feet in length and about forry feet wide, sloping toward either side from a railway track in the contre running its entire length. On either side, on the outer border of the slopes, is a deep gutter for carrying off the blood. The floor of the lane above referred to is plank, and the ground has sufficient fall from the pen to the slaughter house to give an elevation of about two feet to this floor at its lower end. Into this, and forming a part of it, a truck fils, upon which the slaughtered ox is carried to such dresser along the route as may have despatched his last. On the outside of the passage of death, as I shall call the lane above escribed, and fitting against the tence, is a platform about five feet high and four feet wide, running its cutive length. Upon this stands the matandor with his lasse, the other end of which runs through a pulley, and to which are attached two herees, harnessed side by side, each with a rider, whose beat is at right angles to the passage of death, at tis lower end, and on the same side with the platform.

KHIJNO THE ANDMAIS.

The matador throws the lasso, catching by the horns or head one, two or three animals, as the case may be. He sings out "Exta tees" (all right), and away gallop the horses, snatching the cattle from one end of the lane to the other, and bringing them upon their truck with their heads against a sliding bar. The same man who lasses them thrusts his ugly knife into the top of the head, just back of the horns, striking the junction between the spinal column and the brain. Again he sings out "Exta tees": the horses turn about, the bar slips aside, the car runs away, and the cattle are dumped off. One makedow was killing, while I looked on, he average of five a minute. I proceeded thence to the slaughter house, which is open at the sides. I had no idea of the destructive capacity of a single betcher knife. The bullock is turned with his head towards the gutter, his throat is cut, and, ore he has done kicking, has loss half his hide. One man alone takes his hide off and the entrails out, and out the mean off the bones in fiften minutes. Some even do it in ten minutes. Boys carry overytt ing away. He stirs not from the spot. Another bullock drops down at the right in place of the one just despatched, and mysteriously slips out of his hide and disappears in like manner. The hide of his predecessor has, meanwhile, been hurried away to a succession of batis in three different vats into a huge bed of salt, with its feliows, where it siceps a little season undisturbed, and from which it rides out to get the benefit of fresh air and sunshine, after which it is spread, layer upon layer, until a stack is built about twenty-five feet wide, fifty teet long and fifteen feet high. In this state the whole pite is subjected to an immense hydraulic press, by which the entire stack is pressed into less than half its previous bulk. Thence it is hung out to dry.

was being tried out and barrielled for chipment on a correspondingly large scale. About a thousand cattle are killed here every morning.

Woot. BALING.

My next visit was to a baracca. This is literally a storehouse in general, but is applied here exclusively to establishments where wool is baled and hides are stored, and where they are shipped. The process of woot baling is not unlike that of baling hay, the pressing being done by horse power. The manufacture of canvas alone for wood baling in these regions employs many hundreds of hands. Many millions of pounds of wool and tens of thousands of hides are found in the baraccas. Among those making fortunes in this business are a few American, and there is room for smore.

THE FIRST ENGINESS OF SOUTH AMERICA.

These are the Grit South American ports I have visited where negro slavery does not exist. I find here instead manhord, character, progress and prosperity.

UNGOLAT AND THE ARCHESTING CONTENERATION are each divided into great political parties, which seems to be a condition essential to the prosperity, if not to the existence, of any republic. Those of Uruguay are the Blancos and Colorados. The former are the most numerous, and were in power until about eighteen months ago, when Brazil espoused the cause of Flores, the leader of the Colorados, and put them in power at the point of the bayonet, making Flores President. Exactly what the principles at issue between them are seems to be that the Blancos want Uruguay to be let alone, while the Colorados, and put them in power at the point of the bayonet, making Flores President. Exactly what the principles at issue between them are seems to be that the Blancos want Uruguay to be let alone, while the Colorados, seem to seek all kinds of dangerous and entangling alliances with Brazil, the Argentine Confederation and other nations.

The two great parties of Bauenos Ayres are the federal and the Unitarians. The former of these is republican in principle, while the Colorados, seem to seek all kinds of daniers and the

The New Constitution of Texas.

[From the Galveston Citizen and Gazette, April 12.] We have at length received a copy of the constitution and ordinances adopted by the convention. The tilt of rights is the same as in the old constitution, what the following exceptions:—The addition of the following words to section 8—"Provided that in criminal prosecutions, the punishment whereof shall be fine not exceeding one hundred dollars and imprisonment not exceeding thirty days, or either or any less punishment, the accessed may be tried for the same by a jury or otherway as the Legislature may provide." Section 9 of the new constitution reads as follows:—

All prisoners shall be ballable by sufficient sureties, un-

as the Legislature may provide. Section of the lew constitution reads as follows:

All prisoners shall be ballable by sufficient sureties, unless for capital offences, when the proof is evident; but this provision shall not be successived as to probable ball after notetiment found, upon an examination of the evidence by a Judge of the supreme or District Court, upon the return of a writ of habeas corpus, returnable in the county where the offence is committed, or to such other counties as the same may by the constant of parties he made extraoils.

The words we have marked in italies are not in the old constitution; and the words "or the presumption great," which follow "when the proof is evident" in the old constitution are omitted in the new. These are the only alterations proposed in the bill or rights.

The following, being section two, article third, of the old constitution, is wholly omitted in the new:

All free male persons over the age of twenty-one years

All free male persons over the age of twenty-one years (Indians not baxed, Africans and descendants of Africans excepted) who shall have resided at mouths in feasilisms dately pre-ching the exceptance of this constitution by the tougress of the United States, shall be deemed qualitied electors.

dately preceding the acceptance of this constitution by the tenggress of the United States, shall be deemed qualined cleaters.

The new constitution requires a residence of five years in the State for members of the Legislature. The old required but two. The old requires him to be a citizen of the United States, the new requires him to be "a white citizen of the United States,"

An attempt is made to strengthen the provision against electing members of the Legislature by that body to other offices, by inserting the words "although he may resign his seat as such member."

The new constitution flaws the basis of representation on white population, the old on free population. The nomber of representatives is the same in each—not less than forty-five or more than interly for the whole State. The number of Senators is also the same in each—to the state. The number of Senators is also the same in each—to the legislature to elect Senators and "provide for the election of representatives in the Congress of the United States."

In reference to the judicial department the authority to establish "corporation courts" conferred on the Legislature by the old constitution is not repeated; but an addition is made to the first section in the new, which declares that—

The Legislature may establish criminal courts in the principal citizs within the State, with such criminal jurisdiction, escalencies with the limits of the county wherein such city may be situated, and under such regulations as may be prescribed by law; and the Judge thereof may preside over the courts of one or more cities, as the Legislature may direct.

The new constitution provides for the removal of judges from office on grounds which would not be sufficient for imposchment.

The term of Governor is increased from two to four years by the new constitution. His salary is fixed at four thousand dollars.

An addition is made to the new constitution, providing that the Governor may disapprove an appropriation in a

Commanders of Merchant Steamers-How Selected. TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

NEW YORK, April 22, 1866. attention was called to Mr. Wikoff's letter in retation to the loss of the New York and Vera Cruz steamer, The vessel was doubtless stranded by negli-gence or ignorance of navigation on the part of her com-mander. Permit me to ask, sir, how it can be expected asked if the local deviation of the compass had not been ascertained before leaving port. "Local deviation," he replied, "what is that?" It was hinted to him that he would have to take an azimuth as often as possible. He acknowledged his inability to do so. My acquaintance, the captain, taught him to do it. There were over a hundred passengers on board at the time.

Passengers' lives are not so recklessly risked in Europe. Ordinary minds with capital cannot supersede men of brains. Meney cannot purchase commands. The examinations are very strict. Congress should pass such laws as will compet the strictest examinations, and offer to the ablest men the best commands. In France a coaster has to be posted in all that concerns "Le Cabotage." Simple as this examination is, it is far beyond the comprehension of most of our captains. To be a "Capitaine de Long Cours" one must be thoroughly versed in navigation, theoretically and scientifically. Let a man of ability apply for a command in New York—for instance in the Brazil, North American Lloyds, some of the Southern lines, &c.—he is told that he must take an interest or get his irlends to take so much stock.

Passengers, trust not your lives to captains selected for their means; seek conveyance in lines where the commanders are taken for their ability. Shippers, avoid mercenary lines; encourage thereby men of talent.

The Rent Agitation.

MERTING OF GERMANS—A RENT-PAYERS' PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION FORMER.

On Wednesday night a meeting of rent-payers, mostly from the Seventeenth ward, was held at Lincoin Hall, in Houston street, for the purpose of taking some action in reference to the extertionate disposition of landlords and house-owners, and to take some further measures for the payers. The meeting was called Houston street, for the purpose of taking some action in reference to the extortionate disposition of landiords and house-owners, and to take some further measures for the protection of the rent-payers. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Schaible, who was called upon to preside. As Vice President Mr. Kahl was appointed, and Messre. Huth and Neuberger were elected as secretaries. The chairman in opening the proceedings observed that the movement against extortionate rents commenced some eight weeks ago, and in the meantime a mass meeting and a number of other meetings were held, a central organization was formed, and a petition for relief was forwarded to the Legislature. But all these measures had done no good. Not only this, but a law was passed to the effect that the three days' notice by landiords in cases of removal is not necessary, and that one day's notice by the landiord will be sufficient to remove his tenants. It was, therefore, evident that other measures had to be resorted to to secure protection. It was thought prudent by the chairman to pay the increased rents from May to the first of June, and, in the meantime, to take effective measures to secure a reduction of rents by some united action on the part of the tenants.

Mr. Surran addressed the meeting and characterized the extortion practised by landiords against rent payers as usury. He was also in favor of taking decisive measures for their protection by the late of June. He only regretted that the middle classes, whose rents for stores are raised to a high price, did not participate in the movement. Why did they not participate in the movement was not participate in the movement was not participated in by the public as extensively as desired.
